URGE FOOD PROBE BY STATE

W. P. Thore to Call for Prosecution of "Pirates"; Demands All Facts

Today's developments in the Boston American's campaign for lower food prices included:

1—Demand for State probe of food pirates and prosecution by Attorney-General H. C. Attwill if a conspiracy to keep up prices is shown.

2—Continued break in wholesale prices on Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, especially in butter.

3—Reinstant to drop in some suburban prices.

4—Praise of American's campaign by civic leaders.

5—Secretary Alton E. Briggs of Boston Fruit and Produce says storage foodstuff reserves are not speculative, but 'at government request, and that the holders are now due to take a loss.

THORE DEMANDS ACTION.

The demand for State probe of the manner in which the consumer is being robbed on food prices came from Wendell P. Thore of Boston father of the Old Age Pension law.

Mr. Thore announced today that he had prepared a order, which he will have introduced into the present Legislature, directing Attorney-General H. C. Atwill to investigate:

"The unreasonable discrepancies between the wholesale and retail prices of food."

Mr. Thore's order will also provide that, if the investigation reveals that high retail prices are kept up as a result of a conspiracy among

Praise American's Fight for Lower Prices

Praise of the Boston American's fight to cut staple food prices i n Greater Boston was given today by the following:

MAYOR EDWARD W. QUINN, of Cambridge:

"I wish to endorse heartily the proposition which the Boston American has started. Coming at a time which is really the transition period, it will mean a reduced cost to consumers. The price of materials which are absolutely necessary is something vital to the people. The American is to be commended for its action in this important matter."

MRS. IDA M. HEBBARD, President Housekeepers' League:

"Your paper certainly deserves the thanks of every home for the great work you are doing in your campaign against the outrageously high prices for foodstuffs now being charged by many retail stores in and around Boston."

MRS. E. W. HORTON, Vice-President Cantabrigia Club, Cambridge:

"The action of the Boston American in its campaign for reduction of foodstuff prices is very commendable. It is naturally a subject in which all women, especially housewives, are greatly interested. The immediate reduction in prices of foodstus is something we are all hoping for."

JEAN P. NICKERSON, Boston Attorney prominent in civic affairs:

"The campaign of the Boston American has my unqualified support. The middlemen exact too high a tribute from the consumer, without a doubt. The farmers, too, are getting tired of the profiteering of these middlemen, as evidenced by the recent meeting at Washington to bring about closer co-operation between the producer and consumer. When these two classes understand and appreciate each other better, there will not be these complaints about middlemen who charge whatever the traffic will bear."

MRS. WILLIAM ALLINE, President Brightheimstone Club of Allston:

"I am sure every one of our 300 members would join me in supporting the work the Boston American seeks to do in the interest of the consumers of this city."

MRS. REGINALD H. MAIR, Treasurer Parish Workers' Association of All Saint's Episcopal Church, Dorchester:

"I believe the American is hitting the nail on the head and that the campaign by that paper has a great deal to do with the reduction in prices. It shows that the Boston American is the people's paper, is not afraid and is on the right track. I wish you luck."

7 NAVAL BUILDINGS IN RUINS

Two Hangars and Five Auxiliary Structures Gone in Mysterious Blaze at Rockaway Beach

By International News Service.

Rockaway Beach, L. I., Jan. 31.—Two large aviation hangars, five auxiliary buildings and twelve seaplanes were destroyed by fire of mysterious origin today at the United States Naval Air Station.

Seven calls for help were sent out by the station and fire companies from all of the nearby Long Island towns responded.

Fanned by a high wind the flames spread so rapidly that the firemen, aided by sailors, were unable to get the fire under control until the wind shifted off shore. They also were greatly handicapped by the lack of water facilities.

The buildings destroyed ranged in size from fifty-three to a hundred feet in length. No estimate of the damage has as yet been made by the naval officers at the station.

No flying machines were destroyed and no one was injured, according to early reports from the air station.

ACTOR NAT GOODWIN DEAD

Famous Comedian, Native of Boston, Stricken in "Why Marry?"

By International News Service.

New York, Jan. 31—Nathaniel C. Goodwin, famous comedian and one of the most picturesque figures on the American stage, died at the Claridge Hotel here today following a physical breakdown which he had suffered while playing in "Why Marry," at Philadelphia last Saturday night. The end came shortly after 5 a. m.

With him when he died was Miss Georgia Gardner, who, it was reported at one time, was to become the sixth Mrs. Goodwin. Later it was announced that Miss Gardner had been adopted by the veteran actor.

SUFFERED NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

After illness had compelled him to quit the show in which he was starring, Mr. Goodwin was brought to this city from Philadelphia on Sunday. His condition failed to improve, and, as a result of the complications of disease, a nervous collapse followed.

The serious turn in Mr. Goodwin's condition came shortly after his fifth wife, Miss Margaret Moreland, was married to Lieutenant Raymond Gibson, U. S. A., and on the very day the news of the marriage became public.

Mr. Goodwin for many years was kept in the public eye as much by his domestic affairs as by his stage fame.

That his true condition was not known to the veteran comedian was

Judge Cox continued the case until the soldier's whereabouts could be learned.

Goodwin's Philosophy on the Marriage State

Nat Goodwin was not afraid to philosophize on the amusing aspects of his many marriages. Some of his epigrams on the marital state have become famous. Here are a few of them.

Marriages are made in Heaven —and cancelled in Reno.

If a man steals your wife, don't kill him—caution him.

My first wife was an angel; my second a silly woman; my third a Roman senator; my fourth a pretty thing; my fifth all woman.

My whole desire has been to prove by repetition that hope can conquer experience.

Goodwin, according to report, was about to take his sixth wife.

ALLIES ADVANCE TWO BILLIONS TO BELGIUM

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Jan. 31.—The allies have consented to advance Belgium four hundred million pounds ($2,000,000,000) to hasten reconstruction. Credit will be regarded as a portion of the German indemnity.

Paris, Jan. 31.—With the acceptance of the principles of internationalization for the German Pacific and African colonies under the jurisdiction of the nation best fitted to administer government, the next great questions designed to create troublesome discussion in the peace conference include the claims of Italy on the Adriatic, French claims to German territory and the entire Balkan lineup.

President Wilson is standing for administration under the League of Nations, which would give the inhabitants of the territories in question quarter right to appeal from being unduly exploited. The American position regarding the Italian claims on the Adriatic, the French claims to German territory and the Balkan claims is the same as that concerning the Pacific islands.

While naturally considerable friction is anticipated, it is certain that a conciliatory spirit will be manifested. Far better progress has been made than appears on the surface.

Italian insistence that the Pact of London be enforced to the letter has been hit hard by the action of Japan in accepting the abrogation of the secret treaty between Great Britain and Japan regarding the islands in the norther Pacific.

The precedent thus established is considered almost certain to abrogate all of the secret treaties entered into since the beginning of the war.

MANY IN TEARS AT TRIAL OF PASTOR

Saco, Me., Jan. 31.—The State of Maine rolled up a huge wall of testimony today against the Rev. Henry H. Hall, on trial for the murder of his wife, Minnie Stevens Hall, June 11 last.

Here are the high lights of the testimony by which the State is trying to convict the Wells Depot minister of wife-murder:

Dr. George Burgess McGrath, the noted Boston pathologist, declared it his opinion that embalming fluid does not cause discoloration. The defence has claimed discolorations on Mrs. Hall's throat were caused by embalming fluids.

Mrs. Nora E. Wilkinson, sister of the murdered woman, quoted Hall as saying his wife's dying words were, "I want to die—I am willing to die."

Robert L. Gibson, the Harrington hotel clerk, a moment later quoted Hall as telling him an entirely different story as to Mrs. Hall's last hours.

Frances Hall, the fourteen-year-old daughter of the minister, continued her testimony of the quarrels between the minister and his wife over other women for whom the pastor is alleged to have shown fondness.

COURTROOM IN TEARS.

These high lights came to a climax during the testimony of Mrs. Wilkinson. She was telling in hesitant voice of her sister's last moments on earth. As she sobbed out her sister's dying words of "I want to die—I am willing to die," women spectators and strong men broke forth in such audible weeping that for four minutes the trial had to suspend.

Mrs. Wilkinson was telling Hall's version of how his wife, of whose murder he stands accused, met her death in a, fall June 11, 1918, from the railroad bridge to the creek below. Mrs. Wilkinson and fourteen-

ROOSEVELT IN BATTLE WITH GUNMAN

Captain Archie Rushes to Aid of New York Patrolman During Revolver Duel

By International News Service.

New York, Jan. 31.—Despite the fact that his left arm is paralzed from wounds received in France, Captain Archie Roosevelt, son of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, rushed to the aid of Patrolman James J. Devery today in the midst of a revolver duel with a hold-up man.

Bullets were flying and other pedestrians were fleeting for safety. Captain Archie rushed upon the gunman. Then the latter dropped to the pavement, fatally injured by a bullet from the policeman's revolver. Young Roosevelt helped place the gunman in an ambulance.

The shooting followed a holdup by three men in the jewelry store of Henry Graham on the upper West Side. The bandits escaped with a small amount of jewelry. Patrolman Devery started in pursuit. As he overtook the men, Frank Marsello, one of them, opened fire. Archie Roosevelt heard the shots and rushed to the aid of the patrolman.

CONCLAVE MUST ANSWER TYROL'S DEMAND FOR INDEPENDENCE

ALPINE CLAIMS CLASH WITH ITALY'S, SAYS FERRERO

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO
The Famous Italian Historian and Philosopher
(Written Especially for Universal Service.)
(Special Cable Dispatch.)
(Copyright, 1919 by Universal Service.)

Rome, Jan. 16. — In the appalling state of confusion into which Europe has fallen since the revolutions in Austria and Germany nobody has been able to spare a mention for the happenings in the Tyrol, which, however, has also had its revolution, constituting a republic, convening a national council and organizing a militia.

Now Tyrol is about to ask the peace congress to grant it national independence with a constitution something like Switzerland's, claiming at the same time, as a constituent part of the future republic, the German population of the southern slopes of the Rhaetian Alps.

The principles of geographical unity, therefore, conflicts here with linguistic and national unity, for the latter would involve a division of the southern slopes of the Rhaetian Alps between the Germans and Italians, while the former would consign the area on its entirety to the Italians as an economic entity.

SUPPORT FOR THEORY.

We have seen that it is to the interest of Italy that the people of geographical unity should prevail over that of linguistic unity. In this national irreconcilable with German interests. To these 200,000 Germans of the upper Adige constitute a discordant element of which only armed force can dispose? I for one do not think so, and I will call the Germans themselves to testify in support of my theory.

Professor Mayr of the University of Innsbruck, a member of the Tyrolese provisional government, in conversation with a correspondent of Le Temps on January 3, 1919, said:

"Of vital importance to us is the possession of southern Tyrol as far as Bozen, indeed as far as Solurn. If these districts with their Tyrolese populations were handed over to Italy we would never become assimilated Prussia, for instance, the birthplace of Andreas Hofer, cannot be taken from us. If the entente does not listen to us it would be fundamental to decreasing the end of Tyrol. We should be reduced to Vorarlberg and two Alpine and our existence made impossible.

"We would be forced to ask incorporation with Bavaria, but our ties are friendly of the Jew. Most of us are Catholics and Bavaria plays an important role in Catholic combinations. We would suffer from Bavaria as we are governed by its own people and immune from revolutionary politics.

Professor Mayr himself thus states that a union of the upper Adige with Tyrol would be unessential if Tyrol were incorporated with Bavaria. Who can doubt, however, that the Tyrol is destined to be incorporated with some important branch of the German family?

At the present moment the Tyrolese people appear to desire being Tyrolese rather than Germans because they fear the revolutionary movement which is tearing Germany and Austria asunder. But a revolutionary state cannot be permanent. It is a transitory phenomenon. Whatever weight can be attached to the desire is based upon the transient state of things.

As a matter of fact, the Tyrolese are Germans who temporarily desire to put themselves locally from the other members of the German family because they distrust certain contemporary political movements in Germany.

But this wish is only transitory. At heart it is concealed a deeper, permanent desire to be German. The Tyrolese cannot have the national right of being considered in their capacity as Tyrolese, but only in their capacity as Germans, since there never was such a thing as a genuine Tyrolese nation.

Europe therefore must choose between two solutions. If the present wishes of the Tyrolese are to be granted, the geographical unity of Italy will be broken at one of its most vulnerable points by drawing a line of demarkation in the Rhaetian Alps, which would be both artificial and complicated—a frontier which would deprive Italy of one of her most valuable guarantees of safety.

Polish Troops Ready to Leave France for Dantzig

By STEPHEN S. LEWENTHAL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Jan. 31—General Haller, commander of one of the Polish army groups, stated today that one Polish division was ready to leave France for Poland by way of Dantzig (German Poland), and the others were preparing to move.

It was appealed to Marshal Foch to send Polish forces by way of Dantzig," said General Haller. "France and England have given their consent, but there is a strong undercurrent against Polish occupation of Dantzig among the American peace delegates. There is urgent need of the dispatch of troops on account of German activities and attempts by the Czecho-Slovaks to occupy Polish territory in Silesia. For the safety of eastern Europe allied and Polish troops must occupy Dantzig."

Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois will be the principal speaker at the Lincoln Night dinner of the Middlesex Club on February 12. MRS. GOODWIN AND HER SON NAT, IDOL OF HER HEART

Mrs. Caroline R. Goodwin, mother of the famous actor, was very proud of him, as a mother would be, naturally.. And so was the actor's father, Nathaniel C. Goodwin, still living in Roxbury. "A boy who is good to his mother cannot be false to a wife," was a favorite saying of Mrs. Goodwin.

shown by his often expressed belief that a few days' rest in New York would enable him to rejoin his company.

Mr. Goodwin's health suffered a severe shock several weeks ago when an accidental gave him chloroform liniment in place of an eye wash by mistake. This made an operation necessary at the New York Eye and Ear Hospital. For a time improvement was noted, but it was not permanent.

Miss Gardner, whose home is in Los Angeles, was prostrated today over the death of her benefactor. It is understood that Mr. Goodwin transferred a third interest in his property to her a short time before his death and arranged to have the balance held in trust for his mother and father with the provision that it go to Miss Gardner after their death.

MADE FORTUNE AND SPENT IT.

Mr. Goodwin perhaps made more money than any other comedian the American stage has produced, but it is understood that he left a small estate. He was a liberal spender and tender and in exceptionally poor business.

The actor got into the public prints on an extensive scale last year as a result of some humorous revelations brought out regarding his life and habits during a breach of contract suit he had brought against a moving picture company. It was then that Goodwin told of taking a vinegar bath in the morning to tone him up for the day.

There is curious coincidence two of the former wives of the late comedian are now living in New York at the same hotel. They are Mrs. Goodrich and Mrs. Gilson.

Miss Gardner, the last object of Goodwin's attentions had been married and divorced. Her first husband was Joseph C. Windmuller. Her ex-husband is reported to be an officer in the American army.

Nat Goodwin's life story was one long chime of wedding bells punctuated by the divorce court. His death precipitated his sixth marriage. The sixth Mrs. Goodwin-to-be, it was said, was Miss Georgia Gardner, a member of his company.

Born on July 4, 1857, in Boston, he was first married at nineteen to Elizabeth Weathersby, an actress. Ten years after he left himself. Their married life lasted ten years and was very stormy. This was the only one of Goodwin's marriages to be cut short by death. Goodwin always referred to her as "an angel."

His second wife was Mrs. Nellie Baker Pease of Buffalo, a society girl who divorced her husband in order to marry Nat. They were married in 1888 and lived together four years. Goodwin's only child was born of this marriage, a son, named Nathaniel C. Goodwin, 2d. The birth of his child was one of the great joys of life Goodwin used to say, but it was a short-lived happiness, as the child died in infancy.

Of his second wife, Goodwin said that she was "a silly woman," who made him miserable after their child was born by insane jealousy of her son. After the death of the child they drifted apart, and she divorced Goodwin in 1892.

DIVORCED MAXINE ELLIOTT.

Maxine Elliott, his third and most famous wife, was Mrs. Jessie J. Hill McDermott when she joined his company in 1896. She divorced her husband and married Goodwin two years later. Goodwin in turn divorced her on grounds of desertion in October, 1908, and one month later married Edna Goodrich, Wife No. 4.

Goodwin felt bitterly about Maxine Elliott after the separation, charging her with ingratitude. He claimed that he had taught her to act, which she denied. A "Roman scandal" was Goodwin's characterization of the subsequent revelations.

Edna Goodrich he called "a pretty little thing." Their marriage at the home of Goodwin's parents, No. 72 Forest street, Roxbury, took place after many denials on the part of both that any such event was contemplated. They spent their honeymoon motoring in a sort of automobile outfitted up with sleeping quarters and kitchen equipment.

At the time of their marriage, Wife No. 4 was Edna Goodrich Stacy, formerly wife of Edwin Stacy of Cincinnati. She obtained a divorce from Nat in 1911, naming Miss Maud Launon of his company. She charged in her petition that Goodwin had been in the habit of calling Miss Launon "Daisy Doll," and other pet names. The decree forbade him to marry again in New York State during Miss Goodrich's lifetime.

WED MARJORIE MORELAND.

Accordingly, Wife No. 5 became Mrs. Nat Goodwin in Los Angeles, Cal., in May, 1915. She was Miss Marjorie Moreland, the "only woman I ever love" Goodwin declared. He characterized her as "all woman," and was known to say that he would like to cover her with rubies. She later turned him out of a serious illness. Wife No. 5 was the divorced mate of Charles Doughty of Baltimore, a wealthy real estate operator. They were divorced, and he later married Ray Gilson in New York only a few days ago.

He made his debut with Stuart Robson at the Howard Athenaeum, Boston, March 2, 1873, in "The Law in New York." At the American Dramatic Festival in Cincinnati in 1883 he appeared as the gravedigger in "Hamlet." He was well known as an actor in London, where he played in "A Gold Mine" and "The Book Maker," and later toured in "Black-Eyed Susan," playing Captain Crosstree, a part made famous previously by Stuart Robson.

"A Gilded Fool," "David Garrick," "When We Were Twenty-One," "Nathan Hale" and "The Merchant of Venice," in which he played Shylock," were other plays in which he starred. "Wig Worry?" was his last production.

The parents of the actor received a telegram from him yesterday stating that he was confined to his hotel room, suffering a nervous breakdown. They were overcome today at the news of his death.

U. S. READY TO MEET BRITISH TRADE WAR

Senators Demand Drastic Action Against the Embargo on American Goods

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

Washington, Jan. 31.—It's a great game to play and two can play with England—if we don't weaken.

The British embargo on American exports, effective March 1, has aroused the Senate and the country. It was the topic of heated conversation and debate at the Capitol today.

The action of Director Rossiter of the United States Shipping Board in reducing the rate on cotton from $4.50 to $3.25 per hundred pounds was only a single move in the great game for the markets of the world. It was Rossiter's answer from the Shipping Board to the British embargo. And it was a good answer for the first round.

"But now that the game is on," say Senators—Massachusetts Senators and Southern Senators and Western Senators—"now that the game is on, we must demonstrate that we have other and greater cards to play.

LIFT EMBARGO ON OUR GOODS.

"Lift the American embargo on American products," is the most frequent and resolute demand of leading Senators from different sections. "Let American goods—from cotton all the way down—go wherever American goods are in demand—and if necessary to meet embargo with embargo, we can perhaps do it as well as the other fellow."

"I am in favor of lifting the embargo on cotton—yes. I am in favor of allowing Holland, Denmark, and Norway and Sweden to buy all the cotton they need or desire, and if any portion of it gets into Germany and enables her to make the money which she will sorely need to meet indemnities and to feed Belgium, we should not object."

When a Senator of Massachusetts asked Hale Smith if he would be willing to put an embargo on cotton to England to answer England's embargo on New England's shoes, the Georgian answered with patriotic promptness:

"I would not be willing to use Southern cotton as a club or provocation to retaliate on England for her rejection of American products, but I would be willing and would advocate lifting the embargo on all American products—cotton among them—to protect the trade of our country and to coerce any boycott against American products from England or elsewhere."

SOUTHERNERS AID PLAN.

And in this sentiment, Gore of Oklahoma, Reed and other Southern Senators heartily joined.

It is thought that Wilson and Hoover are hurrying home together from Europe to meet this trade war, both by building trade ships with all possible speed for the equipment of the merchant marine and to put into effect the lifting of the embargo on cotton and other American products at once.

That England is stripped for the commercial battle of her existence, and is strongly prepared for it, is the general opinion of Senators and public men.

That England realizes, in a thoroughly friendly, but thoroughly determined way, that America is her great competitor and that the principal place in the world's commerce must be America's if it is not England's, is also the view of the thoughtful and practical statesmen of the capital.

The Senate and the House will begin to ring now with the rounds, one by one, of the great battle of the seas.

England makes her first bold move on March 1.

It is America's turn next.

HENRY FORD'S BELIEF IS: DECREASE PRICES; INCREASE PAY ROLLS

LABOR AS PARTNER, HIS IDEA

"Run for President? I Have Never Given It a Thought," He Declares

By OTHEMAN STEVENS.

Copyright, 1919, by International Service.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 30.—Henry Ford, one of the richest men of the nation, was asked today at his Winter home at Altadena if he desired to be President, and what he did with his constantly increasing tremendous income.

"The Presidency? I give you my word I never thought of it. This is the first time such an idea has been presented to me," Mr. Ford said. "And it is a subject on which no man could or should express himself unless it assume some definite phase. It is not for any American to say he wants to be President; it is entirely for others.

"I'll do any blooming thing in the world that will give me an opportunity to do good. Everyone should have ambition, but no one should ever seek for fame that is ruinous.

"No man who fastens his eyes on fame or the dollar ever arrives anywhere.

"I can say truthfully that I never sought fame nor dollars. I have never tried to save money. I do not believe in young people saving money. Youth should spend its resources in carrying out its ideas, in education, in character formation.

"I HAVE A VERY LARGE INCOME."

"Money? Yes, I made a great deal. I have a very large income. But I spend no more on myself than a workman in my employ. I'm not throwing stones at those who live differently; that's their business. Some my ideas are different, and I have to live them.

"Money with me merely means a way to do something more. I've just put $2,000,000 in a tractor factory that will employ 4,000 men and turn out 120 tractors a day.

"But $2,000,000 isn't much for you, Mr. Ford," said the reporter. "What else have you in mind for your surplus that is growing ruddily?"

"Another tractor factory on the Hudson; another in Ontario, Canada, and we are figuring on building another plant and transporting it bodily to Mexico and establishing a factory there. We may take, say, something like twenty odd millions more; and then wherever I can find a suitable water power, we shall put in more tractor factories.

"My money comes in fast and it goes out fast into new form of industries.

"That's my reason for establishing a paper. That will contain plans and specifications open to any one to use for sure-shot business activities.

"But my business policy may be a bit at variance with the conventional view. My belief is to decrease prices in proportion as business grows and to increase the payroll.

"While not posing as a prophet, my belief is that the world is rapidly coming to the partnership idea. It is likely that in time stock companies will disappear and what we term employer and employe will cease to exist as such, but will continue as partners. Organization on a system approaching such an idea is the principle of my companies.

"While I am, or was, the head, it never has been possible for me, if I had so wished, to pull off a crooked deal in my business or my organization, interested as it is, would never have permitted me or any one else to do any such thing. It was impossible. We are organized for each other.

"Naturally we pay good wages. Well. We have six men who receive $75,000 a year, and several who are paid $50,000 a year, but we have 30,000 men and women who are paid $6 a day.

"And let me say about the women employes, they are encouraged to dress well and make a good appearance, for if they want to marry we want them to marry.

SOLUTION OF LABOR PROBLEM.

"Labor? My solution of the labor problem is to maintain certain and constant division of profits. This implies an active degree of partnership in the business; this, I believe, as I have said, will sooner or later in business take the place of stock companies and the more selfish forms of conducting business.

"Selfish men in business is exemplified by the steel industries. Steel is the basis for most of the wars and troubles of the world, for the interests of steel extend, or have extended, right through from Krupps to the smallest forge.

"The more steel was made the more it was necessary to create a demand for it, and the cry was for tonnage; tonnage demanded guns and warships and when nations accumulated a quantity of these the next thing that came to mind was to put them to use.

"Better steel and less of it would be better for the world and would serve humanity better.

"It seems to me that the troubles caused by steel industries would be cared for if the rights of the people consulted if the people, or rather, the government, which is or should be people, should acquire ownership of all ores and their treatment."

"Ideas are the greatest forces in the world.

"That is one reason why I have grown to admire your chief, Mr. Hearst. He has convictions and he is not afraid of them. And I should judge by the way some folks are hopping on him that he is getting under the skin of those he opposes.

"People do not attack you unless they are being hurt, and there are quite a few people in the world who should be hurt to keep them from hurting the many."

LAWRENCE MILLS MAY BE CLOSED BY OWNERS

Reported Plants Will Not Be Opened Monday, Day Scheduled for Strike

Lawrence, Jan. 31.—Rumors that the American Woolen Company and other mill owners will close their factories on Monday, the day settled for the strike of the loom fixers, brought a new element into the labor situation here today.

American Woolen Company officials deny the reports.

The loom fixers, who have been from the first opposed to a strike or any radical move, today definitely challenged the radical element among the textile workers when they issued a statement declaring that the general committee, which has made a strike apparently inevitable, does not represent organized labor. The loom fixers want another committee appointed, or at least another mass meeting held, and say that if the question of striking were fairly presented to the workers they would be overwhelmingly in the negative.

The loom fixers are mostly English speaking. They are joined in a request for deliberation by the Greeks, the only foreign-born element not in favor of a strike. The Russians, Poles, Italians, Belgians and Lithuanians are bitterly opposed to any compromise, and insist on the forty-eight hour week with fifty-four hour pay.

Those who oppose the strike on Monday pin their faith in legislation to establish the eight-hour day. They warn the public, in an appeal for support, that in a big strike or walkout, such as is proposed, serious trouble must inevitably develop. The fact that a "double picket line" has been decided on by the textile workers is pointed to as a sign that clashes will and must occur.

The entire situation here is a puzzling one, for nobody seems to know just what the textile workers are going to do Monday morning. Whether they will go into the mills and work an eight-hour day, or whether the strike will begin in the morning is something that even the leaders seem ignorant of.

It is evident that the loom fixers, backed by the moderate element among the textile workers, will make a strong fight between now and Monday to stave off a strike.

The American Woolen Company, in denying that the mills would be shut down Monday, issued the following statement: "There is absolutely nothing to the report. Our plants will stay open and run as long as there are enough persons who report and want to work."

HURL BARREL OF DEBRIS ON OFFICER

Soldiers at Devens Who Want to Go Home Take Unusual Method of Saying So

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Jan. 31.—Investigation is being made of the alleged actions of members of the utilities department in hurling a barrel of debris down a flight of stairs in one of the barracks on top of an officer who, it is asserted, attempted to quell a disturbance.

According to reports the men removed the plugs from the electric light sockets and began singing a song entitled, "We want to go home." It is said that the song was for the benefit of an officer of the company. The officer is alleged to have objected much peeved over the song and to have threatened to put the mutineers in the guardhouse.

He went up stairs to caution the men, it is stated, and found them all in a quietly sitting on their cots. He started down stairs and was near the bottom step when the barrel of debris came hurtling after him.

Since the demobilization order went into effect and the men of the 12th Division and Depot Brigade were returned to civil life, the men of the utilities department have, it is stated, been kicking up an awful mess because of their being retained in the service against their wishes.

Recently, it was learned, a committee representing the men called at division headquarters and complained that certain officers, anxious to remain on the army payroll it is alleged, refused to recommend any of the men discharged. The committee was informed, so the story goes, that it would be best for the men of the utilities department to reduce their complaints to writing.

There are approximately 800 men in that unit, many of whom, it is stated, have families depending upon them for support.

SAYS HUSBAND THREW WASH BOILER AT HER

Dorchester Woman, Seeking Divorce, Also Charges Him With Choking

Charging that her husband, Vale G. Marvin, threw a wash boiler full of clothes at her, that he choked her and was otherwise abusive, Mrs. Letitia Marvin of Bayside street, Dorchester, today applied for divorce before Judge Fox in the divorce court.

She told the court that she was married at Portland, Me., on Nov. 6, 1912, and that her husband became very cruel to her after the wedding.

On one occasion, she said, he went to her room where she was lying in bed and asked her to tell him a certain thing. When she refused he choked her, she testified.

On another occasion she said she was holding her baby he threw an orange across the room at her which struck the baby in the face. Still another time when she was leaving the child he threw a wash boiler full of boiling clothes at her, she declared.

Mrs. Marvin is a very attractive young woman. Judge Fox reserved decision.

HELD IN TRANCE BY MAN, SAYS ACTRESS

Says She Pawned Jewels to Aid Actor Who Attacked Her With Knife

New York, Jan. 31.—Miss Ruth Lyons, twenty-three, an actress known as "Billy Howard," told a remarkable story to Magistrate McQuade after she had caused the arrest of James Shea, thirty, an actor, for assaulting her, as she alleged, when she refused to give him money. Detectives called to her apartment said they found Shea holding a knife in his hand and struggling with Miss Lyons.

The actress told the magistrate she had been giving Shea money ever since she met him, eight months ago, and that he threatened to hold her in a trance.

She declared he had compelled her to pawn her jewelry and had brought her to the verge of financial ruin so that she could live in comfort. She could not understand his influence over her, she said. Shea was held in $3,000 bail for the grand jury.

HEART BALM FOR LOUD MAY GO TO WIDOW

Cambridge Man Awarded $19,100 in Alienation Suit; New Tangle in Strange Case

The death of Rufus G. Loud, Cambridge restaurant man, has given a new turn to the Loud-Tapper alienation suit which provided interesting reading for Boston in 1918, by which Mrs. Genevieve Loud may collect the $19,100 judgment secured by her husband against Albert K. Tapper of Medford for the theft of her own affections.

This unusual phase of an unusual case was quite discussion by lawyers added today, while the appeal of the [illegible] was in progress. The original suit was for $25,000. There was no divorce.

Mr. Tapper, a Medford grain dealer, made a motion for a new trial on the ground that the judgment was excessive, but no decision has been announced by Judge King, who heard the motion.

Loud in his charges against the Medford grain man asserted that under the guise of "protector" of Mrs. Loud, Tapper caused him to be put in the Boston Psychopathic Hospital to get him out of the way. With the help of lawyers, Tapper, it is alleged, was the aggressor in the affections of the aggrieved husband. Mr. Tapper frequently visited Mrs. Loud's apartment.

Mr. Tapper tried to prove that Mr. Loud was insane, that he wanted his wife put in an insane hospital, and that he frightened his woman by climbing through her window at all hours of the night.

The executors of the Loud estate can collect the judgment, if it stands, in the opinion of lawyers. This is taken to mean that Mrs. Loud may be called on to accept money secured from an alleged wooer by an injured husband.

HELD ON CHARGE OF TRYING TO ROB POOR BOX

How he watched Lewis Bocco, alias Lawrence Bernard, a jewelry dealer, stand over the shrine money box at St. Alban's Church, Brookline, and finally fail to his knees, a short distance beyond when the door was opened, and later followed Bocco until he was apprehended, was told by the Rev. Fr. Garrett Condon to Judge Perkins in the Brookline Police Court.

Bocco, who the police say has a record, was charged with attempting to break and enter the church with intent to steal the poor box on January 22, and with larceny from some unknown person. On the former complaint Judge Perkins declined jurisdiction, and held Bocco in bonds of $1,000 for the Grand Jury, while on the other complaint Judge Perkins found no evidence and ordered the complaint dismissed.

Dr. John T. Creagh, pastor of St. Alban's Church, was called to the witness stand by Detective-Sergeant Rutherford. He told the court of seeing Bocco in the church. Later the clergyman said he waited at the entrance door until Bocco made his exit and, stopping him, asked his name.

The witness told the court Bocco declared his name was Howard. Asked what he was doing in the church, Dr. Creagh said that Bocco said he desired to light a candle. The defendant left the church and Dr. Creagh testified that he told Father Condon to follow him.

Fr. Condon and Dr. Creagh both told the court that there was a sticky substance on the slot where the coin is dropped in the poor box and some on a pew nearby.

Judge Perkins pointed out that Bocco had given a fictitious name, that he was found at the box for a time, and that he did not believe it hardly consistent for a person to stay as long if on a legitimate errand.

ALIENS ANXIOUS TO REVISIT HOMES

More Than 4,000 Applications Have Been Filed at Foreign Permit Office

More than 4,000 applications for permits to visit their native lands have been filed by aliens at the foreign permit office in the Custom House. It is not all smooth sailing, however, as many Italians have found out to their cost. Many men of this nationality have landed in sunny Italy only to find themselves placed under arrest charged with having evaded the country's military laws in not responding to the call to colors.

A number of Germans, who were formerly seamen on the German liners seized here, but admitted to the country as immigrants prior to the declaration of war against Germany, have applied for permits to return to the Fatherland to join their home folks, as have many Finns.

These men, however, have not received permits, pending a decision from Washington. The unsettled social conditions in Germany and Finland are responsible for the desire of this government to prevent their return for the present, at least.

He also asks for the custody of a minor child.

YANKEE DIVISION WELL BEHAVED, SAYS COLONEL

Stamford, Ct., Jan. 31.—In a letter received here today, Colonel J. Alden Twachtman of Greenwich, Ct., who left Camp Curtis Guild, with the 26th Division, as captain of F Battery, 103d Field Artillery, a Stamford unit, indignantly refers to a person who sent him tracts from the States for distribution among his soldiers, and emphatically says that the soldiers of the 26th Division are as temperate and moral and well behaved a lot of men as can be found any place in the world. The tracts never reached the hands of the soldiers.

Colonel Twachtman, after going overseas, was promoted successively until he became commander of the 103d Field Artillery Regiment in November. He tells an interesting story of recovering two horses, "Hanna" and "Yarrum," in France early in January.

Colonel Twachtman had "Hanna" with him at the Mexican border and "Yarrum" was the gift of his wife, when he departed for Camp Curtis Guild.

The horses were shipped to France, via Newport News, two weeks before the 26th sailed.

Colonel Twachtman was unable to locate them upon arriving in France and gave them up as victims of U-boat. To his great surprise and joy he found them in his own division, near Le Mans, early in January, and claimed them.

They have been used throughout the campaign of the 26th, "Hanna" in the 102d Field Artillery and "Yarrum" in a trench battery outfit, and both are badly battle scarred and lame.

DR. DONLAN SUES LONG ISLAND TRUSTEES

A suit for $50,000 alleging conspiracy has been filed in an action of tort against the trustees of the Long Island Hospital by Dr. Charles H. Donlan, recently reinstated head of that city institution.

Attachments on the real estate of Frank L. Brier, Mrs. Elizabeth G. Kirby, Mary A. Dierkes, Thomas E. Masterson, Thomas A. McQuade and James V. Donnorumma have been made and the writ of service is returnable in the Suffolk Superior Court on the first Monday in March.

Dr. Donlan's suit is the result of alleged persecution which led to his dismissal by the then trustees of the Boston Infirmary on June 25, 1918.

Trustee McQuade, who voted to request Superintendent Donlan's dismissal, resigned from the board the day following his action, and Masterson and Brier have since resigned, but their resignations have not been accepted by Mayor Peters, it is asserted.

According to Joseph Landy, attorney for Dr. Donlan, the trustees of the Almshouse and Hospital charged Donlan with extravagance, being an officer of the United States Army without the knowledge of the trustees; housing forty United States soldiers at the institution in January, 1918, unbeknown to the board; and with disregard of orders relative to the conduct of the institution.

Dr. Donlan, by advice of counsel, refused to leave the island following the date of his removal, and remained in readiness to perform his duties during the remainder of the Summer.

Following a public hearing before the trustees on July 9 and 10, the board sustained their former action and ordered Dr. Donlan off the island by July 15. Notwithstanding the use of every known legal device to rid themselves of Dr. Donlan's services, the doctor stuck to his post.

Finally, in November, 1918, Dr. Donlan secured a court hearing which lasted fifteen days, before Special Justice Joseph Murley at East Boston. Acting under Chapter 247 of the Legislative enactment of 1918, Judge Murley ruled that the charges against Dr. Donlan were unfounded and not brought in good faith. The reinstatement of Dr. Donlan was ordered forthwith, with the payment of all back salary since June 25, the date of the taking effect of the original vote.

When Judge Murley's finding was announced, Trustees Masterson and Brier tendered their resignations.

John F. Cusick, a former member of the board, who was absent on the date when the trustees voted to oust Dr. Donlan, resigned from the board following the reinstatement of Dr. Donlan, and has not been mentioned in the suit.

Men and Dogs Fight in Streets for Food Scraps

New York, Jan. 31.—How men and dogs fight in the streets in Mount Lebanon for scraps of food and how mothers sometimes have to defend their babies against starving dogs, is told in a letter received from Dr. Theodore Bellama, head physician of the government of Mount Lebanon.

The letter, which relates also an incident of a man so crazed by hunger that he tried to devour a child, was read here at a luncheon given in the interests of the relief fund for the people of the Near East.

Copenhagen, Jan. 31.—The Spartacus groups at Cuxhaven and Bremerhaven have surrendered, according to advices from Germany. They were badly defeated at Wilhelmshaven, which is still in a state of siege.

Hermann, the complainant, charged that the actress tried to extort $250 from him.

Corsets for Modish Male Is Decree of Fashion

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 31.—The American male who wishes to be modish has a choice between going into training to reduce his waist inches and wearing corsets.

This was determined when National Association of Merchant Tailors in a secret convention assembled decided that mens clothes are to be skin tight and "chich related" whatever that means.

Of course those young Americans whose waists have grown thin while their muscles grew hard in their country's service will not have to worry. They require no padding nor corsets.

-ahead of the fashion magazines

IT may seem surprising that Filene fashions should be ahead of the fashion magazines. But it must be remembered a magazine goes to press a long time before it is on the newsstands, while a dress may arrive at Filene's from Paris one day and be in our news the next.

The February 1 issue of one of the leading fashion magazines played up a dress by Lanvin, Paris, which we think you will be interested to know, was in the Filene store the day before Christmas. The dress was important because it showed the changed silhouette of the new Victoire fashions. Not only was the original dress in Filene's more than a month before it appeared in the fashion magazine, but the moderately priced reproduction was ready a week before the magazine came out.

Many other Victoire fashions in addition to that sketched were brought out by Filene's two weeks ago, both in the original and the reproduction.
What are Victoire fashions? They express the spirit of the new period of victory just as Directoire fashions were linked with the French revolution.
The original of the Victoire dress featured in the fashion magazine was navy blue serge embroidered with beads, Indian fashion. (It was sold Thursday.) The reproduction is palest pink crepe de Chine embroidered with milk and blue beads. The waistline is long and blousy in back. The skirt nips in at the back and is loose in front. The reproduction is crepe de Chine, $60. It can be seen in the misses' shop, fourth floor, and ordered in other materials and colors.

R. R. BOARD HEAD URGES FEDERAL CONTROL

Washington, Jan. 31.—Government ownership of the railroads was urged before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee by Laurence B. Pine, chairman of the Kentucky Railroad Commission. He gave eight reasons which he said forced him to conclude, in spite of inherent sentiment to the contrary, that privately owned railroads could not meet the demands of the public in matters of transportation and elaborated in support of each contention.

SEEK TO BETTER BOSTON AS DEBARKATION PORT

Facilities for making Boston a better debarkation port were considered by a group of officers of the Northeastern Department under Colonel Irwin Landon, adjutant-general. Plans were submitted to do away with delays that have heretofore crippled the service at the wharf and embodied the army arrangement to criticism.

Colonel Landon said that under the new system the army could handle a number of transports.

Murray, at her grocery store, No. 78 Field street, Roxbury. The police charge him with intent to rob Mrs. Murray and he will be brought before Judge Hayden in the Roxbury Municipal Court.

Four other negroes taken into custody by the police were released after Mrs. Murray failed to identify them.

U. S. IS BLAMED FOR UNREST IN RUSSIA

Miss Louise Bryant Declares Troops Should Be Withdrawn at Once

"If America didn't go into Russia, the affair there would have been settled long ago."

Such is the opinion expressed by Miss Louise Bryant, who addressed a gathering of more than 2,000 persons on the "Truth About Russia," in Tremont Temple. Miss Bryant spent six months in Russia as a newspaper correspondent.

"No one who believes in self-determination can believe in intervention in Russia, and no one who thought it wrong to go into Belgium can think it right to go into Russia," she added.

10,000 NEW SCHOOLS.

She told of the conditions in Russia under the Soviets. She illustrated how the huge estates of the former nobility were cut up into small farms for the peasants and of the building of new schools, which she claims total about 10,000. "These conditions," she said, "appear to be entirely different from what Charles Edward Russell has described.

"Russian babies are starving because of the blockade and American boys are being butchered for nothing in Russia."

Following this she wound up with the fervent plea that this useless bloodshed be stopped.

John Reed, an American journalist, who served several months as head of the English Bureau of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Russia, took the platform. He came in place of Max Eastman, who is confined in New York with influenza. Reed told of the army of 2,000,000 men that was being trained by the Bolsheviki.

Resolutions were read by Professor Clarence Skinner of Tufts College, who acted as chairman. The resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, follow:

"Whereas, The propositions of the President of the United States, now unanimously adopted by the great Allied powers, promise to Russia 'an unhampered and unembarrassed opportunity for the independent determination of her own political development and national policy, and assure her a sincere welcome into the society of nations under institutions of her own choosing';

"Therefore, We, 3,000 American citizens, assembled at a mass meeting in Tremont Temple, Boston, on January 20, 1919, demand,

"First, That all American troops be immediately withdrawn from Russian territory, and that the principle of self-determination be granted to the Russia people.

ASK LIFTING OF BLOCKADE.

"Second, We demand that the blockade of Russian ports be immediately lifted and that foodstuffs and supplies be freely admitted into Russia, and

"Third, We demand that the deliberate official circulation of false reports should cease, and that the censorship be lifted which has prevented us from finding out the truth about Russia."

Gen. Edwards Toasted in "Y. D." Song by Boston Soldier

"Now the war is over and we are headed for the coast,
The great Y. D. Division of which the papers never boast,
We've done our bit and done it well and now we'll drink a toast
To our General Edwards!"

The above is the last verse of a song New England's 26th Division is singing to the tune of "John Brown's Body." The words were written by Sergeant Walter Snyder of the adjutant-general's headquarters, at the time the division received orders to embark for the coast, and enclosed in a letter sent to his mother, Mrs. A. Snyder of No. 35 Coleman street, Dorchester.

There are seven verses to the song, describing the battles in which the 26th took part at Soissons, the Toule sector, Apremont, Seicheprey, Chateau-Thierry, St. Mehiel and Verdun.

ABANDON HUNT FOR SLAYER OF MRS. BROWN

Case too Baffling for Detectives Working on Rockland Killing

Rockland, Me., Jan. 31.—The active hunt for the slayer of Mrs. Carolyn Wells Brown, whose slain body was found a month ago today, was definitely abandoned when D. T. Green, Boston detective, gave up the case as too baffling for solution at present.

The detective left for Boston, after declaring that the murderer would never be found unless his conscience forced a confession, or unless he indulged in some other outbreak of brutal passion to bring him within the law. Local authorities still maintain a perfunctory search for the slayer, but without any real hope that they will accomplish anything. Rewards aggregating $4,000 are still in effect.

The report of Medical Examiner George B. Magrath of Boston, which is expected to throw light on the exact manner of Mrs. Brown's death, has not been received by County Attorney Wilfred Withee.

BLAME HARVARD UNIT FOR SHARE IN MIX-UP

Up to Lieut.-Col. White to Have Made Clear Statement, Declare War Dept. Officials

War Department officials at Washington today while admitting they had made a mistake in ordering the Harvard unit to Devens to demobilize on their return to the city unofficially criticized Lieutenant-Colonel Herbert H. White, manager of the unit, for not making a plain statement to Northeastern Department officers and relieving them of embarrassment.

They explained that the mistaken order was brought out as follows:

The operations division of the general staff yesterday was notified by the British admiralty that an American Red Cross unit, which had been serving with the British, was on the British steamer Megentic, docking at Portland, Me. They looked up the records and found Base Hospital 5, Harvard unit, had been serving with the British and assumed this was the one referred to by the embassy.

Accordingly they wired instructions to Portland that the men be sent to Devens and the nurses to New York.

WAS WITHIN RIGHTS.

The department now finds that before Unit 5 was organized, a volunteer unit was raised at Harvard and commissioned by the British and had nothing to do with the American army. It develops that the latter unit was the one that arrived.

Lieutenant Colonel White was within his rights, say department officials, but unofficially:

They criticise him for not making a plain statement of fact to prevent embarrassment to the departm—t.

They point out that the det—ment would have been criticised if it had failed to provide for an American unit reaching these shores and that the fact that the arrival was at a port little used for debarkation would not excuse them had no provisions been made.

Lieutenant-Colonel White today called upon Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commanding the Northeastern Department, and explained the action of his command at the North Station.

"It was manifest that the unit which I had charge of was confused with Harvard Unit No. 22, under Dr. Cushing," he said to General Edwards. "That's how the mistake was made. I desire to assure you that no discourtesy was meant by our attitude, for we found your officers confiserate of us at the North Station.

ALL RIGHT, SAYS EDWARDS.

"There was some delay about getting the unit under way, but I felt that I should call upon you and give our version of the affair and no harm has been done."

General Edwards, in explaining the situation, said: "The whole thing has adjusted itself. Somebody made a mountain out of a mole hill. When Harvard Unit No. 22 does come along, why we'll serve them with what this British contingent got. That's all. Nothing but a mistake of identity."

REPORT SOME R. I. MILLS FAVOR EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Providence, Jan. 31.—Unusual developments in the Rhode Island textile industry are looked for Tuesday, when, according to President Golden, the textile workers will work only the eight hours they have agreed upon. Britain Demobilizes 38,000 Troops in Single Day

London, Jan. 30—Demobilization of the British army is proceeding as rapidly that if it continues at the present rate one million men, excluding officers, will have been discharged by the end of the month.

The record day for discharges was last Tuesday. During twenty-four hours ending at noon that day, 38,000 men were demobilized. After this month there will roughly be 1,600,000 men left to be dealt with, so if demobilization continues at the present rate all men excluding those of the Army of Occupation, which has been fixed roughly at 900,000 men, will have been demobilized before

FEARS WIFE AND CHILD LOST IN THE WOODS

Cheshire Woman With Three-Year-Old Daughter Disappear Mysteriously

Adams, Jan. 31.—Leaving her home in Cheshire two weeks ago last Tuesday with her three-year-old daughter, Gertrude, Mrs. Minnie Caldwell Bliss, wife of Gordon Bliss, a well-to-do Cheshire farmer, walked to the street railway station in the village. took the child from a baby sled in which it was riding and disappeared.

The husband has just returned from Boston, where he went in hope of finding his wife and child with relatives. His search was unsuccessful. Mr. Bliss believes his wife became temporarily deranged and wandered away without knowing where she was going. He fears they may have wandered into the woods of Cheshire and perished from hunger and cold. He declares the home life of Mrs. Bliss was happy.

Mrs. Bliss is thirty-two years of age and was married twelve years ago. She was born in Cheshire and had always lived there.

Billion in Interest Annually for War Bond Holders

New York, Jan. 30.—The United States will have an annual interest charge of $1,100,000,000 to meet after the April Victory Loan, according to estimates made by the Mechanics and Metals National Bank of New York. The government interest on bonds will be $100,000,000 greater than that of the combined European powers in 1913, and fifty times greater than the United States interest obligations two years ago.

TELEPHONE RATE CASE PUT OFF ONE WEEK

Likely That Supreme Court Will Decide Controversy in March Sitting

The case of the Public Service Commission to compel the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company to cancel the schedule of rates promulgated by Postmaster-General Burleson, came before Judge De Courcy of the Supreme Court today, and on motion of Assistant Attorney-General Hitchcock was postponed for one week.

Mr. Hitchcock stated that the present bill would probably be dismissed and a new proceeding brought based on final action taken by the Public Service Commission ordering the telephone company to cancel the schedule now in operation as directed by Postmaster-General Burleson.

As soon as a new bill is filed and the pleadings completed it is the feeling of Mr. Hitchcock that the case shall be reserved for determination by the full bench of the Supreme Court in the March sitting. As a matter gives public service cases precedence over all others this case will be one of the first argued, and a speedy decision may be looked for in view of the public importance of the matter.

The Public Service Commission has declared the Burleson schedule of rates to be unreasonable, and the Attorney General will contend that the right to fix rates is in the State.

Q—Do you have trouble with your throat and does the cold damn ever affect you, Frances? A—No, sir.

Q—The night that your mother died you stayed at the house of a woman member of your father's church, didn't you, Frances? A—Yes sir.

Mrs. Mary A. Stevens, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Hall, was next called to the stand. She said that she knew nothing of the marital troubles of the Halls, but that Hall told her of the accident and said that when his wife fell into the stream he jumped in after her.

ALWAYS SEEMED HAPPY.

Q—You never saw Henry and Minnie when they did not appear very happy, did you? A—No, I never did.

Q—And they appeared very devoted to one another? A—They did.

That is all.

Mrs. Nora E. Wilkinson of Doubleboro, Mrs. Hall's own sister, was the next witness.

Mrs. Wilkinson said that Hall told her that when Minnie fell from the bridge he jumped in after her in water up to her waist. "She and I then lifted her on to the bank and took her home," she said.

Then Mrs. Wilkinson, in slow, halting phrases, repeated what Henry Hall had told her of her sister's dying words: "I want to die—I am willing to die, then she talked of me, her mother and Frances."

Here the composure of the witness broke down and, burying her handkerchief her face, she sobbed openly and many of the men and women in the court room joined her.

"Henry told me that after [illegible] the doctor gave her something to ease her pain and that she died of [illegible] hemorrhage," she continued. "He told me that if she had lived she would have been blind and deaf, anyway, from the cut on her head."

Cross-examined, Mrs. Wilkinson said that Mrs. Hall's health was not [illegible] that she had to lie down [illegible] that the events would knot [illegible] Hall died of cerebral A—

Q—And Hall told you that he remained at the hospital until his wife died? A—He did.

Q—Did the [illegible] stores of Wells Depot said that when the Halls and that they went to Bamford with Katie Gerow? A—Yes.

Q—And long were you with her? A—Long around together, that was her regular afternoon.

Q—Did you call for her? A—I went to the station. She was there, was gone. Later I saw her in the [illegible] with Hall and Katie Gerow.

Mrs. Stevens told of another [illegible] Hall and Katie Gerow walked up the road in the direction of Biddeford, after the train had passed.

Cross-examined, witness said that she was coming people went to Mr. Hall's church.

Q—I will bring it that you think a good deal of your daughter, Mrs. Stevens? A—I do.

LIKED KATIE GEROW.

Q—And you were perfectly willing that she should associate with Katie Gerow? A—I was and I am to this day.

Q—How did Mrs. Hall appear when she was with her husband? A—Always cheerful.

Grace M. Seavey, the next witness, said that she knew Henry H. Hall and his wife, and she knew Miss Katie Gerow.

Q—Did you ever see Katie and Henry together? A—Yes, I used to see them coming from church Sunday.

Q—Did you ever hear any conversation between them? A—Yes.

Miss Katie says: "Will I see you at the house tonight?"

Miss Seavey said that she also saw Henry Hall with Katie the first time [illegible] Hall fell.

Cross-examined by Judge Emery [illegible] Hall was a man of good character in Wells Village, Miss Seavey? A—

Stamping of feet and sand clapping interrupted the testimony at this point.

Fred A. Tarbox of Biddeford, State police officer, said that he knew Henry Hall and that he had investigated the case at Wells during the Summer of 1918.

TARBOX ON STAND.

Mr. Tarbox told of conversations with Hall, during that time. He said that Hall pointed out to him, on the railroad bridge, the spot where Mrs. Hall fell.

A—Would the spot where she landed be on wet or dry land? A—It would be on dry land.

Q—Did you see Katie Gerow? A—Not until I came off the bridge. I had only a very brief conversation with her.

Q—Where did the minister go after that? A—He went along with me.

Q—Where did Katie Gerow go?

Mrs. Stevens, aged mother of death victim, on the stand.

A—I couldn't say. I didn't notice.

Cross-examined by Judge Emery witness said that Hall appeared indignant all the way.

Jess Hilton, the next witness, told of a visit of Henry Hall to the strawberry beds, where Mrs. Hatch, Katie Gerow and she were picking strawberries.

She said that Katie was working near her and that Hall came up and talked with her.

John G. Fay, station master at Wells Depot, said that on June 11 the last freight going east from Wells was at 6.17. The next train was at 7.21, which was a passenger.

Cross-examined by Judge Emery.

Q—Didn't you write a letter to the Governor of Maine regarding Mr. Hall? A—Never wrote a letter to anyone about him.

Q—Did you go to see anyone and tell them about the accident to Mr. Hall's wife? A—I went to see Governor Milliken.

Q—Didn't you have some trouble with Mr. Hall. A—Never.

Q—Didn't you say something in a store regarding a certain woman? Answer yes or no. A—Yes.

Q—And Mr. Hall said that it was a pretty business to talk about person character when they were not there, didn't he? A—No, sir, not.

Q—You say that the pastor quoted scripture when he spoke to you of that certain woman. What did he say? A—He told the story of the farmer and the skunk—I thought it applied to him.

Q—He didn't say "Speak no evil of thy neighbor," did he? A—No, he did not.

George R. Morrel of Wells Depot said that he knew Henry H. Hall and Katia Gerow.

Q—Did you ever see Henry Hall with Katie Gerow? A—Yes, I have seen him coming from Bald Hill to Wells Depot.

Q—How many times? A—Once.

Q—Did you ever see Henry Hall with Katie after church? A—Yes, often.

Q—Did you ever see Henry Hall with Katie in the evening? A—Yes.

Fred Matthew, another resident of Wells employed by the Boston and Maine Railroad in the Summer of 1918, said that he saw Henry Hall perhaps three or four times that Summer.

Q—Did you ever see him along the track with Katie Gerow? A—About three or four times at different points along the track.

Q—Ever see him with her after his wife's death? A—Three or four times.

The witness also said that he heard Hall say, "I am tired of all this. I'm going to get me a housekeeper."

Matthew said that Hall went up the track toward the Gerow farm, met Katie in the driveway and talked to her there.

Dr George Murgess Magrath, medical expert of Suffolk County, pathologist, connected with Harvard University Medical School, was called next. He said he had performed autopsies on between 4,000 and 5,000 bodies and had performed autopsies on a hundred or more bodies that have been embalmed from twelve hours to two years.

Examination of Dr. Magrath was conducted by Attorney-General Sturgis and at the outset brought out Dr. Mcdrath's opinion that the tendency of embalming fluid to to lighten the color of the tissues of the body with which it comes in contact. Dr. Mcdrath also testified that the strength of the embalming fluid was of greater importance than the quantity.

The injection of fluid would not cause discoloration of tissue or clots in the veins, in the opinion of the witness.

101ST NEAR MUTINY, SAYS CORPORAL

South Boston Boy Denounces "Inhuman" Orders by Regulars and Needless Slaughter

New York, Jan. 31.—That the 101st infantry threatened open mutiny against reckless and unintelligent regular army officers two days before the armistice was signed was asserted here today by Corporal Hollis Pocus of South Boston, arriving on the transport Mongolia.

"On November 9, after we had been over the top four times, against overpowering odds," says Corporal Pocus, "the order came that we must charge the German positions again. Something unheard of in modern warfare. Our own officers gave the order reluctantly, but reminded us that our duty was to obey.

"I saw the commissioned officers of the regiment walking up and down the lines trying to induce the men to obey, but they were received in sullen silence.

ORDERS WERE CHANGED.

Within a few minutes an order came from somewhere to postpone the attack, as the 101th infantry was coming up the line to replace us and we were to have a rest. If that order of the regular army had been insisted on there would have been open outright rebellion, for it was as inhuman an order as ever was given by irresponsible leaders, and it was, furthermore, entirely unnecessary.

Corporal Pocus paints in vivid colors conditions in the trenches occupied by the 26th Division just before the end of the war. He says that the bitter feeling against the regular officers who had kept the men at the front so long without relief must have found an outlet if the war had lasted much longer, and adds that the officers of the 26th were just as indignant as the men, although they did not express themselves so openly.

RIDDLED BY MACHINE GUNNERS.

Describing the battle of Nov. 9, in which the 101st suffered tremendous losses, Corporal Pocus says:

"The first time we went over the top we were riddled by the German machine gunners unsupported by our artillery, and fell far short of taking our objectives, which was the German first line.

"We made a second try, and then a third, in the face of withering machine gun and cannon fire. We were driven back, leaving some of the best boys who ever came out of Massachusetts dead or dying in No Man's Land.

"Then, although there was some grumbling, but the feeling subsided when the reasons were given for the advance, and swept across all of the old-time dash. This time we were not simply driven back, we were slaughtered.

"Our own officers were stunned by our losses, and when we got back to the dugouts we supposed that at least we were to be allowed a little rest, if not sent to the rear to regiments and reorganize.

STUNNED BY THE ORDER.

"I shall never forget the consternation and anger with which the Massachusetts fellows, officers and men, received the word that we were expected to go across for a fifth try at the enemy positions.

"Some of the men went hysterical. Some just cursed the officers who issued this cruel and unnecessary order, but not a man moved. I told the lieutenant that the men were too tired to even attempt to cross that valley of death again, and he agreed with me, but decided that orders were orders.

"I don't know what happened then; we just stood there, waiting for the time when we were supposed to leave the muttering trenches again. That order never came, and it is a good thing for somebody that it did not, for it would never have been obeyed. The next day the 104th came up to relieve us, but the regiment did not get into action on that part of the line, because of the speedy signing of the armistice.

Corporal Pocus was only one of 400 New Englanders arriving on the Mongolia. He lives at No. 230 Silver street, South Boston.

POWERFUL NAVY DUTY OF U. S., SAYS DANIELS

Secretary Decries America's Seeking Naval Protection From Any Other Country

By International News Service.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 31.—"We shall not build against any nation, but so long as this republic needs a navy we must have one for our own protection and to preserve the peace of the world, that will be powerful strong and modern," declared Secretary of the Navy Daniels in an address this afternoon at the graduation exercises of the last naval reserve class, U. S. Naval Academy.

After expressing confidence that Congress would authorize his three-year building program for a great navy, Secretary Daniels voiced the belief that the League of Nations "will bring about such a friendship and understanding among all nations as will ultimately cause a reduction in armament and a consequent decrease of expenditures for naval strength."

But so long as America needs a navy, he reiterated, she should "build the types of ships which will keep it abreast of any other navy in the world."

"It would be a sin," he continued, "for America, rich and powerful, to be beholden to any other country for naval protection. We must in whatever sort of a world-police shall be needed in the new order contribute as many units and as much strength as any other nation. We must remember always that the maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine is our peculiar responsibility and duty and for its proper maintenance and our duty to secure to all the smaller nations of the world the right to which they are entitled. We must maintain a navy strong enough and powerful enough to measure up to our responsibility and our obligations."

Bryan Willing to Let People Vote on the Liquor Question

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 31.—William Jennings Bryan is perfectly willing to trust the American people to use the initiative and referendum on the liquor question, just as soon as it becomes a part of the constitution of every city and State in the country and the nation.

Bryan is firm in his opinion that the American people will never vote liquor back. While discussing many phases of the prohibition amendment and the initiative and referendum, he paid his respects to the "wet" lawyers and charged that they are now for the initiative and referendum after having fought it for fifteen or twenty years, because they see in it a hope to revive the liquor question.

LET STATE RUN R. I. TROLLEYS, SAYS KIERNAN

Appointment of Receiver Justifies Action by People, Urges Representative

Providence, Jan. 31.—Representative James H. Kiernan, champion of public ownership of public utilities, announced today that he was going to ask the Rhode Island Legislature to take action in regard to the receivership of the Rhode Island Company. Frank H. Swan has been apointed temporary receiver of the road by Chief Justice Turner.

Representative Kiernan stated that the fact that receivership had been found necessary for the road proved that public ownership is the only solution of the street railway problem here. He said that better service and higher wages will result from this, and that the railways have never been properly handled under private ownership.

Governor Beeckman stated that the company should be reorganized and some of the smaller roads lopped off. He is against State ownership of the roads. Receiver Swan stated that he would run the roads to the best of his ability until March 4, when a permanent receiver is to be appointed.

WHAT SOLDIERS WANT TO KNOW TOLD HERE

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American is dedicated to the purpose of doing things for the soldiers and sailors of Uncle Sam. It is for officers and non-silks. Answers to questions will be published in the American daily, and many personal services will be done for the soldiers and sailors as stated below.

The department is not merely operated as a question and answer column. It is co-operating with similar departments in Hearst's New York American, Chicago Examiner, Atlanta Georgian, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Attorneys will answer questions of a legal nature and undertake many kinds of legal work in the courts for officers and enlisted men in behalf of the Boston American and its associated Hearst newspapers.

Please write any suggestion you have for widening the activities of this department.

Address all communications to Soldiers' Service Bureau, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston. Letters marked "confidential" will be seen by Mr. Hearst.

As heretofore, the purposes will be:

1—To conduct the affairs of the officers and men of the army and navy, a legal bureau, with headquarters in Washington and with branches in each city where a Hearst newspaper is published.

2—To have the severe sentences of courts-martial examined into to see if any injustice has been done and to fight for righting of all wrongs that may have been done by courts-martial.

3—To aid discharged soldiers, sailors and marines in procuring positions.

4—To list employers ready to hire discharged soldiers, sailors and marines.

5—To gain special medical attention for recently discharged men.

6—To work for the rapid discharge of soldiers with six months' pay in advance.

7—To help relatives find men in the service.

8—To hurry the settlement of allotments and the pay of officers and men of the army and navy where delays have occurred.

9—To provide information consistent with the nature of the bureau.

10—To aid in the formation of associations of veterans of the war; to list those who wish to assist them in working out their plans.

11—To arrange lodgings for visiting service men.

12—To give legal and social aid where families of soldiers, sailors and marines are threatened with, or involved in, disputes or proceedings in any way due to the absence from home of the members of the fighting forces of the United States.

Soldiers and sailors should write at once if they are in any kind of trouble.

MRS. P. R.—The 19th Company, and the rest of the 1st Battalion, 20th Engineers, was suspended from the priority list for movement homeward about January 15. No reason was given. It is not known when the battalion will be re-assigned for early convoy.

G. K. CAMBRIDGE—The 313th Sanitary Train is not on the priority list for movement homeward. It is now in the 89th Division, which has headquarters at Lagny.

SAILOR'S SISTER—The U. S. S. Melville has returned to this country, arriving at New York a few days ago.

M. L. A., REVERE — The 3d Provisional Battalion, 56th Engineers, returned to this country on the S. S. Huron.

A MOTHER—Part of the 325th Field Artillery, including Battery F, is due in New York this week.

G. K. L.—The 18th Brigade, C. A. C., has returned, except for the brigade staff.

M. F. W., PORTLAND—Co. D, 105th Infantry, will return home with the 27th (New York National Guard) Division, which is expected to arrive in New York city about February 22. The whole division is to come home together. The matter of your allotment has been referred to our legal department, which will communicate with you.

BROTHER—The 42d Division is near Langres, with headquarters at Prauthoy, ten miles south of that town. It hasn't been assigned to return home.

HIS SISTER, MAHEL.—The 814th Pioneers returned home on January 23 on the S. S. Chicago.

ANXIOUS MOTHER — Base Hospital No. 7 has not yet been ordered home.

A SOLDIER'S SISTER—The 81st Regiment, C. A. C., is expected to return soon. But it is not yet in convoy from France.

ANXIOUS SISTER — Detachments of the 164th Infantry have been placed upon the priority list.

J. L. L.—The 457th Aero Squadron does not appear on the priority list to date.

V. T. M.—The army training school at Langres has not been broken up.

J. J. P., MANCHESTER—The 2d Ammunition Train is attached to the 2d Division, Army of Occupation, at Heddesdorf, Prussia, near Cobleng. Inquire of the Adjutant-General, War Department, Washington, D. C., if your man has been named in the casualty lists. Incidentally, a "casual" is not necessarily a "casualty."

More Instructors Needed for Training Maimed Heroes

Washington, D. C., Headquarters Soldiers' Service Bureau, Jan. 31.—Surgeon-General Ireland announces that instructors and supervisors are still needed in the educational service of the medical department. He calls attention to the recent order permitting transfers from a New York branch of the service to the medical department for this work.

Both officers and enlisted men desiring transfers to this service are instructed to apply to the local educational officer at the base hospital, or to the division of physical reconstruction, Surgeon-General's Office, Washington, and full information will be supplied.

It is further pointed out that the need is most urgent for instructors and supervisors in the following subjects: Agriculture, carpentry, auto mechanics, typewriting, drafting, printing, tractor operating, machine shop, electricity, leather work.

CENTRAL LABOR UNION IS FOR WAR BONUS

President Michael O'Donnell and Secretary Henry L. Abrahams of the Boston Central Labor Union and members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local No. 142, at one of the largest meetings ever held by this organization, gave their heartiest approval to the Boston American's plan for six months' pay for soldiers.

Said President O'Donnell: "It is fine work the Boston American is doing. I am absolutely in favor of it."

Secretary Henry L. Abrahams said: "The plan to secure six months' pay for discharged soldiers is a fine thing and the Boston American is to be commended for it."

RECORD ATTENDANCE.

Unanimous ratification of the great petition of the Boston American's Soldiers' Service Bureau occurred at one of the largest meetings ever held by Local No. 142, Electrical Workers, which had over one-fourth of its entire membership in the service.

The meeting was a record breaker for attendance as over 450 persons were present, more than half of the membership, and the petition was greeted with enthusiasm, according to John J. McDonough of the organization. The membership is composed of inside telephone workers, 250 of whom were in service. Many are still doing duty under the colors.

The individual enlistments of men and women throughout New England now amount to over 166,000 and the number increases daily.

"I don't think it is fair to the men who have gone abroad to fight for world democracy to come home and face the conditions they are facing," said President O'Donnell of the Central Labor Union.

"It is wrong to discharge men who live in Ohio at Camp Devens without sufficient money to get them home and enable them to purchase civilian clothes. Many of them must wear their military uniforms to work. While some employers are welcoming back discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, others are not and some are offering them reduced wages to return to work.

PRAISES AMERICAN'S WORK.

"I heartily approve of the fine work that the American is doing in trying to help the soldiers get six months' pay. They should get it."

Commendation of the American's plan was also given by Secretary Abrahams, a labor leader of country-wide reputation.

"The Boston American is to be commended for its work. It is a fine thing, this plan to secure six months' pay for discharged soldiers," he said.

Jobs are being found for the jobless who still number hundreds, medical aid is being given to the sick, legal aid and assistance to discharged service men or their families in order, in many cases, to relieve the pinch of want due to delayed allotments and allowances.

Actual suffering has resulted in several cases because of the slowness in receiving money allotted by the soldier with that allowed by the government, the total being pitifully small in some cases where there is a large family. Seven and eight months have elapsed in many cases before the dependent relative receives any financial relief.

Inquiries regarding information which can only be obtained at Washington are forwarded to the Washington headquarters of the Soldiers' Service Bureau and the replies have been so prompt to date that many women who had tried to get the information in other ways were agreeably surprised.

The Soldiers' Service Bureau is at the service of soldiers, sailors and marines in every way. Legal aid, medical aid and employment can be obtained at No. 1 Beacon street, room 826. Information concerning men and units will be answered by mail if letters are addressed to the Boston American, No. 80 Summer street.

Men, this is not merely a sale, but an EVENT and it's the big opportunity of the season to make a most profitable clothing investment. We are frank in stating—that owing to the rising cost of woolens and labor—these big values and generous savings are not likely to be excelled or even equalled for many moons to come. Your good judgment will tell you likewise when you see them.

If you've had the least notion of purchasing an Overcoat in the near future compare these values with those you have already seen. Wise men will hurry down our direct entrance from Summer street—slip on one of these warm, serviceable, good-looking Overcoats and realize the big saving offered.

Every coat is well tailored, perfect in every way, and reliable from lining to buttons—bottom to collar—of course our guarantee of satisfactory service and good appearance goes with every purchase.

Included are about every style we could list at these low prices. Box Coats and Chesterfields, single and double breasted models, full and skirter lined. The ulsters and ulsterettes are half belted. In the lot are the most desirable pure worsteds, gray mixtures, browns and fancy mixtures included.

Good clothes stand the test of long service

TIME and service tell many tales about clothes. How will the low-priced clothes bought to-day look in six months or a year? It's a pretty sound rule in buying that merchandise can't possibly be better than its price.

A lot of clothes are offered and advertised today solely upon a price basis — low price apparently being their chief attraction.

At this time we wish to emphasize the fact that our aim during this clearance sale is not only to save you money but to see that what you buy here deserves your preference because of its unquestioned good value at the price. Reductions are as follows:

From a strictly financial viewpoint, we're not justified in making any such price reductions as those named below on this choice stock of merchandise---the highest grade lot of Suits and Overcoats in existence---more especially since our regular prices were way below current market quotations. But we have a surplus of these goods on hand---a stock that would have carried us clear over into next fall had the war continued. That's the only reason for this

At Substantial Reductions From Former Low Prices

Don't let any expectation of lower clothing prices prevent your taking advantage of this opportunity. Clothing will positively be higher next spring. It will not be any lower next fall than our prices have been this season. In fact, we believe you can buy here now considerably under what you will have to pay for equal quality next winter. This is not our opinion alone, but also the best judgment of leading men in the woolen and clothing manufacturing business. So even if you don't need anything more for present wear, you'll be safe in buying for next winter.

BRAVES IN LINE TO REGAIN ALL FORMER POPULARITY

By NICK FLATLEY.

CHANGE of ownership of the Braves means a whole lot of little things for the game here in Boston, for the National League and, incidentally, for those who have been forced to chronicle the doings of the team these latter years of inexpensive and impossible operation. That is, of course, provided the new powers go through from this aperitifs to the finger bowls, as they promise to do.

Our lowly Braves have been slowly but surely fading in popular esteem, until at the close of the 1918 season they had hardly a friend in the world. Nobody even asked for passes, which is the ultimate test. A new owner, going into a new season, has a wonderful chance. Here in Boston, if he shows that he's willing to get as many good players as possible and to try to make his team a winner will succeed.

Which is just what George Washington Grant, new Brave magnate, will probably do. "You gotta" admit he starts out with a big name. He has been in sports and knows how to be handled financially successful. He will not have any trouble to try out his plans unheard of and frowned on to proffer. He will undoubtedly find has in the club and baseball for investment's sake.

He's moving his household goods to Boston and ... right here and he on the job. The Valley Forge ... chapters of his name suggest, is right ahead of him. The players on the list must be signed up and quite a few new ... somewhere or other. Many a good man was lost ... have failed from the scene were waiting and ... business whatsoever.

Stallings Baseball Genius With Half a Chance.

MANAGER GEORGE T. STALLINGS of the team had a dozen good chances during the meeting to get players that would have plugged up bad gaps in the fortifications of the outfit. He could have grabbed Daubert and others of that ... for the matter of ... ten dollars in view of value received. But he couldn't get the few dollars.

He was optimistic, however, and we do know that he arranged a couple of trades, contingent on change of ownership of the club. He actually did persuade a couple of managers to give him time, before disposing of athletes that the Braves needed. Now, beaming George—can step out and do some business.

And Stallings can get a team if he has the means. He knows players as very few pilots do. He has the knack of judging young risers and developing them. Whenever he had the opportunity he has proved this, not to mention a couple of times he came through against all kinds of handicaps.

Perhaps the most significant thing that President G. W. G. remarked after being officially introduced to Boston was that Stallings would be the baseball boss, and would have plenty of money to work with. Given the authority and the coin, George F. will undoubtedly produce. He's a baseball genius, though he hasn't had much chance to show horseshouts the last few years.

Nobody is happier than he over the change.

Braves Due to Step Into Real Prosperity.

PROSPERITY lies directly ahead for the Braves, or all the signs are wrong. The team has a few real cards and big stars—Hank Gowdy, Rabbit Maranville and Dick Rudolph, for example. They form a nucleus for a team that can quickly be turned into a money maker.

Hammering Hennery Gowdy will pack the parks, here, and as the team swings around the circuit, when the batting ... gets back to the U. S. It looks now as if Hank would undoubtedly be on hand for the season's opening.

Both Boston Clubs Now Owned by New Yorkers

THE two Boston clubs, the Red Sox and Braves, are now in control of New Yorkers.

The Red Sox are owned by Harry Frazee, the theatrical man. The Braves have been sold to George Washington Grant, the movie man, also of New York.

James E. Gaffney, another New Yorker, owns Braves Field.

Rabbit Maranville ... form ... went into service ... the last draft ... the National League ... over to Camp ... and ... with the ... marched ... Sykes and ... Sykes ... watch ... he ... comes back ... the active work ... what will ...

Half a dozen other Braves were in service and ... suffer popularity ... bravery and get the credit ... at the start of the season ... Sherry ... Tyrone ... will keep the ... shuffling.

Perhaps the most significant remark ... President ... Wright made ... was ... he thought ... old players ... of the wrong time and are getting out the same way.

Then, too, the day is not far distant when Boston will have a one-park baseball city. That will cut down running expenses at the enormous ... and ... is ally.

Stocks Steady in New York After Midday

TRADING MOSTLY CONFINED TO SPECIALTIES

Standard Leaders Narrow in Price Range and Market Quiet

By W. H. ROSS.

Stocks were quiet in New York in the afternoon, with prices holding around the noon level. Nothing of importance marked the market during the noon hour. A few stocks increased gains, including Studebaker, General Motors, Willys-Overland, Industrial Alcohol and Brooklyn Rapid Transit. That traction road reports for January earnings will show $1,448,156 charges and taxes, which is equivalent to $10.92 a share on the stock. The 1918 earnings were the equivalent to $10.52 a share. United State Steel indicated the advancing price range for the usual leaders, fluctuating within less than a point from opening to closing. Call money is loaned and renewed on mixed collateral at 4½ per cent; no all industrials at 5 per cent.

GAINS AND LOSSES.

Gains shortly before 2 o'clock included Distillers ¾ at 34¾, sidebaker 1⅛ at 58⅝, General Motors 2¼ at 128, Willys Overland 1⅛ at 39⅛, Brooklyn Rapid Transit ¾ at 20⅜, Tobacco Products 1⅜ at 77½, Industrial Alcohol ⅝ at 107⅝, Great Northern Ore 1⅛ at 38, Baldwin ⅛ at 87, Bethlehem B ¼ at 58¾, Anaconda ¼ at 58⅜, and ⅛ at 74¾, Crucible ⅛ at 58, Steel, Union Pacific and Reading were unchanged.

PRICES HIGHER BY NOON.

Prices were firm in New York at noon, with the tendency upward for a number of issues. Near the end of the morning session became more active and advanced. Previously steels had been the feature, while a few specialties were given some prominence. Cuba Cane preferred had advanced three points, Studebaker two points, Baldwin

Repudiation of Scandal Mill's Methods Should Have Come Sooner

Secretary Baker has publicly expressed his personal disapproval of the outrage inflicted upon respectable and patriotic citizens by permitting this fellow Stevenson to list them as friends of German propagandists, and has denied that Stevenson was connected with the War Department.

Doubtless Secretary Baker was perfectly honest in making the statement that Stevenson was not connected with the Military Intelligence Division, but he was mistaken just the same.

Stevenson was called to appear before the Overman sub-committee at the suggestion of Captain John B. Trevor of the New York Bureau of Military Intelligence, and was officially described by Captain Trevor as a member "of the propaganda section."

The propaganda section being apparently the section which spreads a propaganda of falsehood, with the object of injuring institutions or individuals that those in authority or the influences behind those in authority may desire to defame. This is Stevenson's specialty—a sneaking occupation for which he seems to have been eminently fitted by nature and earnest practice.

We do not blame Secretary Baker for being ignorant of the identity of any slanderer, sneak and spy.

But we do blame Secretary Baker to this extent—that he has been perfectly familiar with the tactics by which other subordinates of his in the Military Intelligence Division have deliberately attempted to create public suspicion of the loyalty of other citizens, no more deserving of such mean and base treatment than Miss Jane Addams or any other of Mr. Baker's personal friends who have been attacked, and everyone must regret that Mr. Baker never uttered one word of rebuke or denial when these agents of the military spy system were thus defaming and maligning and plotting attacks upon other American citizens whose loyalty was never stained by one single unpatriotic word or act. Secretary Baker has done exceedingly well to speak out at last against these outrageous and infamous performances of his subordinates.

But he would have done still better had he spoken sooner—had he not waited until some of his personal friends and life-long associates were attacked by these sneaks and scandal-mongers, and until the scandal-mongers themselves had been thoroughly discredited by the exposure of their fabricated evidence and corrupt practices.

And we might add that such newspapers as the New York World and the New York Times, which are now so earnestly condemning the Overman committee for giving publicity to this fellow Stevenson's slanders and falsehoods, would do well to remember that IT WAS THEIR OWN EAGER PARTICIPATION in the earlier activities of the scandal mill operating before the Senate sub-committee which made possible the presentation of such vile and shameless innuendoes and accusations as those trumped up by this fellow Stevenson.

No American's reputation ever would have been in jeopardy from sneaks, forgers and false witnesses had the press stood up manfully for fair play and the protection of the reputation, rights and lawful liberties of every citizen, as matters involving the rights and liberties of all citizens—and especially of the rights and liberties of a free press.

But newspapers were so selfishly and contemptibly concerned with jealousy of each other that they had no time or inclination to think of the rights of the public or the larger liberties of the press.

Fortunately, the happy hunting days of licensed sneaks, and false witnesses are over.

Fortunately, nobody credits them any more.

Fortunately, they have overshot their mark; overplayed their game of patrioteering; brought themselves into universal contempt and disbelief.

But that does not alter the fact that during their day of opportunity, when the war-excited people swallowed any invention or falsehood without question, these scoundrels did criminally attempt to damage the good names and to question the loyal characters of hundreds of upright, faithful, patriotic American men and women.

And then, we think, was the time when those who are belatedly protesting against the operations of these scandal-mongers should have spoken out manfully and boldly, as becomes honest men and decent, public-spirited newspapers or as becomes anybody or anything fit to wear the proud name of American.

The exposure and abject failure of the campaign of calumny so dangerous to liberty and democracy, so menacing to free men and free institutions, should be credited to the Hearst newspapers and to the courageous citizens who worked with them from the beginning to protect the whole people and the whole press of the country in their fundamental rights and liberties.

BE A MAN OF AFFAIRS

If anyone insulted your manhood by calling you a man of small affairs you would feel like laying him flat and rolling him out, eh?

Every little unfavorable business breeze that blows ruffles you, does it not?

Every little thing which goes wrong roughs up your feathers and troubles you more than you would like others to know.

Constant irritation and giving up to trifles which disturb your peace of mind is adding another ruffle to the wrinkles which are beginning to seam your face, and even the runner can see which way the wind blows for you.

Are you not spending too much time on the little things which a subordinate should be made responsible for, and neglecting the really important questions of greater moment?

Way haggle over an affair of a few dollars and lose sight of the thousands involved by your short-sighted mismanagement?

If you are capable of managing large affairs and rounding up and holding together big business, why be agitated by every little wind that blows and completely unfitted to think in larger terms because you are spending yourself with the smaller—the minor details. Grasp things in a big way and then see that you have competent men to keep the ways open.

BOYS OWN FRIDAY

This is the bi-centennial year of boyhood's best bet in the Friday line. Meaning Robinson Crusoe's dusky discovery of that name. It was 200 years ago that Defoe's fascinating island tale was published. So this is Man Friday's 200th anniversary year.

SMART SNOW

Snow-flakes swirling down the escalator passage at the South Station subway made smarting eyes for patrons travelling up to the street. "Gee, lots of 'pep' to this snow," exclaimed one man. He was right. A customer in a lunchroom near the head of the escalator had spilled a pot of pepper. A waiter swept it out the door and the wind carried it, with the snow-flakes, into the faces of the up-coming escalator line.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Soldiers Appreciative

Editor Boston American:

I take this liberty of writing you so that you will know that the ex-soldiers of the North End appreciate the stand you have taken relative to discharged soldiers, and we assure you that the residents of that district which has contributed so generously in men and money toward victory feel that in the Boston American they have at least one friend who takes a real interest in their boys.

We have watched for years Mr. Hearst's battle against the interests with admiration; we deeply respected the determined courage with which he fought and still fights what Jack London appropriately termed the Iron Heel; we read with disgust of the insidious plots to injure his reputation; now that he has so unselfishly started this campaign for six months' pay he has won a place deep in our hearts, henceforth we will think of Mr. Hearst and his great institution as something always connected with right and justice. There are many of us who, after having served over a year, have been unable to find suitable employment, our allotments are held up, we are out of funds and have to depend on the bounty of our parents, who really should be getting help from us. This condition makes us feel very grateful to you for the work you are doing for us.

We have been loyal as soldiers; we would be willing to again offer our lives if necessity occurred, in spite of the shameful treatment given us, if the government at least meets us half way; they appropriate millions for starving millions of Armenians, Belgians, Hungarians and everything else, haven't they a cent for the men who protected those millions? You have the united support of the entire North End in your wonderful movement, and may God grant that it is successful for the sake of the many heroes who haven't even a home, however humble.

EX-SOLDIERS' COMMITTEE.

Ye TOWN GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

En route to the West, Jan. 28.

YOU KNOW how it is.

WHEN YOU'RE going away.

AND YOU'RE awfully busy.

PACKING THINGS up.

AND CLEANING the flat.

AND RUNNING around.

AND SAYING good-by.

AND GOING to parties.

AND GETTING home late.

AND GETTING no sleep.

FOR A week or two.

AND YOU get on the train.

AND YOU have your dinner.

AND TELL the porter.

TO MAKE up your berths.

AND YOU'RE looking forward.

TO TWELVE hours' sleep.

WELL, THAT'S how it was.

WITH MY wife and I.

AND THE porter was through.

AND OUR door was locked.

AND THE lights were out.

AND WE'D drifted away.

INTO SLUMBERLAND.

AND PEACEFUL dreams.

WHEN THE buzzer buzzed.

AND WE both awoke.

AND I got up.

AND OPENED the door.

AND THE porter's hand.

CAME OUT of the light.

WITH A telegram.

AND I closed the door.

AND TURNED on the light.

AND READ a message.

FROM R. H. Burnside.

AND THE message said.

THAT BURNEY was sorry

HE HADN'T been in.

WHEN I'D called him up.

TO SAY good-by.

AND HE wished us both.

A VERY nice trip.

AND I turned out the lights.

AND GOT back into bed.

AND IT took me an hour.

TO GET back to sleep.

AND AN hour later.

THE BUZZER buzzed.

FOR THE second time.

AND AGAIN I awoke.

AND AGAIN arose.

AND OPENED the door.

AND THE porter's hand

SLIPPED IN again

WITH A yellow thing.

AND I opened it.

AND IT read like this.

"ACCEPT MY best wishes.

"FOR A pleasant journey.

"AND SAFE return."

AND IT bore the name.

JOSEPH F. Moran.

AND, OF course, it's grand.

TO HAVE friends like that.

AND I love 'em all.

AND THEY make me feel.

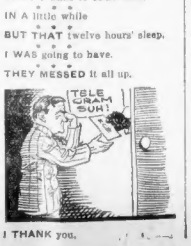
THAT I want to come back.

IN A little while

BUT THAT twelve hours' sleep.

I WAS going to have.

THEY MESSED it all up.



I THANK you.

ADVANTAGES OF TRIP TO THE POLE BY AERO

By Garrett P. Serviss

I'D like to go along with that expedition by aeroplane to the North Pole. That is the trip best worth making in this world just now. The Aero Club of America backing such an enterprise excites my admiration as Jules Verne's "Baltimore Gun Club" did when its armless and legless veterans decided to find out by actual experiment whether a projectile could be shot to the moon carrying human beings inside.

I am not writing ironically. No, by no means, for I believe as fully as does Peary or any member of the Aero Club that the North Pole scheme is perfectly feasible. All it needs is money and courage.

As I picture the sight that those explorers will behold at the Pole—for they will surely go there—it calls up in my memory two beautiful drawings that I used to pore over, representing the "Snowy Poles of Mars" as seen with a powerful telescope. For it is a kind of telescopic view of a Pole of the planet Earth that will lie under the eyes which will look down upon it from cloudland.

From a height of 10,000 feet, which might easily be attained in the wonderful polar day, when the unsetting sun shines for months on end, and when, as those who have been in the Arctic assure us, the air is almost balmy and for long periods perfectly quiet—from such an elevation the range of view would extend, theoretically, at least 125 miles in every direction, and, taking account of refraction and the change of the radius of curvature of the earth, about the poles, the distance might be as much as 140 or 150 miles. So a circle of 250 to 300 miles in diameter, with the North Pole as its centre, would be visible.

A Wonderful Picture

Think of photographing that! By rapidly changing place other bordering areas could be brought into view, and thus the horizon of the circle of visibility would be extended, now in one direction and now in another, and it would be possible to link up the successive views so that a continuous picture would be obtained of the great polar basin from the northern extremity of Greenland to the North Pole. If it proved practicable to advance at a high elevation along the line of Peary's march in 1909, the aerial explorers would never lose sight of landmarks from Greenland to the Pole.

And, as they swept on, their range of views would extend, according to the height, from 50 to 150 miles on each side, so that they would carry, so to speak, a broad land of discovery from the known across the unknown. This could be effected without a continuous journey by aeroplane, provided that ascents were made from time to time along the route. In this manner the adventurers would hold their course straight, like a bee or a bird.

The advantages of views taken from aeroplanes for topographic and geographic explorations and measurements of the earth's surface have been so strikingly evidenced by the performances of the aerial arm during the war that everybody must fully appreciate them.

To recur to the instance of Mars. It is only from an incumbent viewpoint that comprehensive views of a planet's surface can be obtained. It is possible that we have more correct outlines of the permanent features of the globe of Mars than we have of the earth's.

Service to Humanity

There is no service that the aeroplane can render to civilization more important than the aid it will afford in the proper mapping of the earth. A sketch or a few photographs quickly made from an elevation of a mile or two will give more information than weeks of geodetic operations can offer of such things of a complicated coast line, the grouping and interrelation of a cluster of islands, with their straits and channels; the presence of dangerous reefs, the modelling of a hilly region, the sinuosities of a waterparting, the trend of valleys, the forms and limits of glaciers, snowlines, etc.

If I were a young man I should seriously consider the desirability of training myself to join the aerial corps of the geodetic survey or coast survey of the future.

Big Rocks Less Important.
"Capital Is Coy."
England's Patriotic Embargo.
Bite Off Sentimentality.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919.)

"England gives Gibraltar to Spain in exchange for Ceuta and Morocco," says the Paris newspaper L'Intransigeant. Not a bad trade on the whole. With modern guns one side of the Gibraltar Strait is about as good as another, even without the big rock. And with modern submarine and flying machines able to pass under the water and high in the air, unseen, big rocks commanding important positions are not as valuable as they were. Gibraltar ranks now with that ancient fort, Castle Garden.

Mr. Franklin, of the Treasury, told Chicago concerning the new loan:

"We know we shall have to make our strongest appeal to capital this time, as the labor situation now is not what it was last October."

Mr. Franklin also said "capital is coy" and suggested that it would be necessary on this loan to pay higher interest than on the other. Not much of a compliment for patriotic but "coy" capital.

Mr. Evans, of the Government labor department, says that 123 industrial centres in December reported 10,000 men out of work.

Last week there were 212,000 unemployed. This presents a serious problem, with millions of soldiers coming out of the army.

Failure to pay those soldiers their salaries for six months while they look for work, without disturbing workers now busy, would be much worse for the country than paying out the amount of money involved to men that have well earned it.

Senator Kenyon's bill, appropriating $100,000,000 for public works, should pass at once. The country cannot afford to have millions of men suddenly idle. It can still less afford to lose the values that would be added to the national wealth if all those men were kept busy. New canals, highways, better railroads, drainage and irrigation works, all are needed, enough to keep every man busy.

If war had continued, this country would have found a way SOMEHOW to provide the billions necessary to pay the bill. Why can't it find a sum one-tenth as great to keep labor occupied and general prosperity going?

The situation is complicated by the wise action of England declaring suddenly a complete embargo against this and other countries on all goods that can be made in England by English workmen. That means more men out of work here.

The American War Trade Board says truly that England is not to be blamed for this sudden shutting out of our goods. She thinks first about her own workmen and business men, and that it what she OUGHT to do.

That is what somebody ought to do for American business men and workmen, also. This government should bite off short at least 90 per cent. of its sentimentalizing and money-spending in Europe. It should concentrate its intelligence and resources on the serious problems at home, bring back without loss of time our men in Europe, leaving Europe to attend to her affairs while we attend to ours.

This country has problems enough to occupy the intelligence of high officials, plenty of problems to absorb all of the country's spare cash.

What may be described as Uncle Sam's sentimental European debauch has lasted long enough.

By and by those that govern this country will understand more clearly the temper in which American soldiers are returning to the United States and before the organized pessimism from the army here at home. They will wake up and do for this country and its inhabitants some of the philanthropic things that they have been doing for all of the countries EXCEPT this one.

"If we have wisdom and sporting blood," says Secretary Daniels, "we shall never again be guilty of the folly of trusting all of our world commerce to foreign ships." That is refreshing. If the people will back up Daniels as they should do, this country will own a commercial and fighting navy worth while. Some of our Englishmen born in America denounce Daniels because he wants the biggest navy for this country. But Americans don't denounce him.

The United States solemnly acknowledges Mr. Paderewski, the musician, as head of his government in Poland. That is an interesting development in Twentieth Century democracy.
